

Impaired Driving Service now available

Key Forensic has launched a new service for Police customers to determine the proportion of alcohol or drugs present in blood and urine samples, where samples have been obtained as a result of a driver being suspected of impairment. The service also includes testing to support or disprove the commonly encountered 'Alcohol Technical Defence'.

- Clear indication of sample being above or below legal limit
- Other analytical services available to aid investigation of more complex cases
- 10 day turnaround
- Expert witness for court reporting

The Impaired Driving Service is complemented by the provision of evidence collection and storage kits specifically designed for blood and urine samples:

Blood Alcohol
Urine Alcohol
